A Look At New Civic Center

Horse Disease May Affect Humans

By: Frank H. Sweet
Extension Agent

Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (V.E.E.), the virus disease of horses and ponies which is causing so much concern in the Southwest, is transmittable to humans. Symptoms of the disease are flu-like and variable depending on the individual. Children are more susceptible than adults.

The fact that the disease is transmittable should cause concern enough for each individual to make certain that his horses, mules, donkeys, and ponies are vaccinated against the disease.

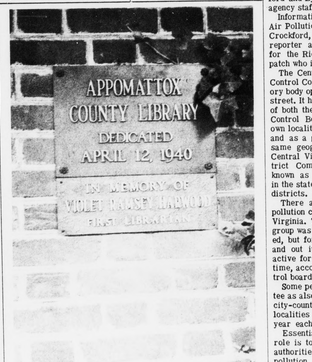
A state-wide vaccination program has already begun and Appomattox horses will be included. All horses two weeks of age or older may be vaccinated. Those animals 6-8 months or younger may need to be re-vaccinated to insure a permanent immunity. Older horses should receive permanent immunity from the single vaccination. The vaccinations have been proven safe and are completely Free of Charge.

It is up to YOU, to make sure your animals are on the list to be vaccinated. Call the County Extension Office 352-8244 immediately.

Primary PTA To Meet

The Appomattox Primary School P. T. A. will meet Thursday, September 16, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. All parents are urged to come out and meet the teachers for this school year and support the P. T. A.

Mr. Earl Smith will be the guest speaker.



Tribute To Librarian

A bronze plaque (above) has been placed at the Appomattox County library by the Appomattox County Education Association in memory and tribute to Violet Ramsey Harwood (Mrs. A. R., Jr.) Mrs. Harwood, first librarian in the county to serve the Appomattox County Library, died tragically in an automobile accident in February of this year. Her service to the community, both as librarian, civic and church worker, had wide-reaching effect upon the growth and progress of Appomattox. Her personal witness to many people stands, also, as a living monument to the work and dedication of a Christian who gave untiring of herself to help others. Mrs. Lucy Green, present chairman of the Welfare Committee, AEA and Mrs. Gerald Wilbun, past chairman, have indicated their appreciation to the many people who made this plaque possible.

Board Names Bicentennial Committee

Appomattox supervisors (above) on Friday extended an official goodbye to Miss Lelia Mayton (2nd from right), extension agent, home economics, who will be leaving at the end of the month for Montgomery county and a position as extension agent there. Replacing her, Mrs. Rebecca (James E.) Johnson (3rd from right) who has been serving as trainee and as extension agent here since January of this year. Appearing with them before the board was Charles R. Perkins, District agent (2nd from right) who explained the change in personnel. Attending the meeting (from left): Cloverhill supervisor O. H. Tolley, Mrs. Aldah H. Gordon, clerk; Stonewall supervisor Otho W. Martin, Jr., Mrs. Johnson, Mr. Perkins, Miss Mayton and Southside supervisor John C. Cole (far right).

Appomattox county supervisors, meeting in regular session Friday morning, named a committee to explore the possibility of this country's participation in the Bicentennial Anniversary of the Independence of the United States.

Supervisors' board chairman, Otho Martin, Jr., read a letter from Governor Linwood Holton stating that "in the years 1976-83 Virginia will join the nation in observing the 200th anniversary of our national independence."

Mr. Martin said further that a state-wide planning conference of the Virginia Independence Bicentennial Commission is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 17 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Hotel John Marshall in Richmond.

He added that it is the Va. Commission's hope that every county, city and town will be represented, both at the luncheon Friday and all - day planning sessions and later, in the form of a permanent organization to plan the Bicentennial celebration.

Holton wrote in his letter, "In support of the Commission, I write to invite your constituency to create a Bicentennial planning committee . . . I look forward to taking part in the Conference (Friday) and giving it the wholehearted support of this office. Virginia should be a leader in this nationwide celebration."

Mr. Martin said that an initial planning committee had been named: Mrs. Otho Martin, Jr., Mrs. O. H. Tolley and Mrs. John C. Cole. Mrs. Martin served in a somewhat similar capacity during the Centennial observance of the end of the War Between the States in 1964 and 1965 in assisting with planing for ceremonies held at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park in cooperation with National Park planning personnel and officials.

In other action Friday, the board received a resignation notice from Miss Lelia Mayton, extension agent, home economics, who has served the county in that capacity since 1965. Her replacement, according to Charles R. Perkins, District Agent, East Central District, VPI Extension, is Mrs. Rebecca (James E.) Johnson, who has been serving here since January 4, 1971, first as a trainee and lately as fully-qualified extension agent, home economics.

Southside supervisor John C. Cole gave the board a report on the Local Government Officials' Conference held at the U. of Va. Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

The conference was concerned with solid waste disposal; a report on the 1971 session, Va. General Assembly, labor-management relations in Va. local government and other subjects of interest including the assessment of real estate on the basis of use versus fair market value plus a session devoted to mobile homes and modular units--with respect to housing and zoning regulations.

The county also went on record for a request for four "trainees" through the Cent. Va. Planning District Commission -- trainees to be paid from federal funds which can be allocated to each county, upon request, in order to employ the under-employed and make use of workers who otherwise might not be able to find jobs. Welfare recipients are eligible. These will be non-professional people, according to the board, and will be used perhaps in town-county cooperative pro-

Two Local Men On Pollution Committee

"The environment" had not even become a fad, must less a phenomenon, when Central Virginia Air Pollution Control Committee was born.

The Central Virginia Air Pollution Control Committee was organized just three years ago and Thursday night will holdits fall meeting at 8 o'clock in Lynchburg City Hall.

Appomattox county has two representatives on the Committee: John W. Canada and John D. Simpson.

The committee as a whole is composed of two members each from the counties of Amherst, Appomattox, Bedford and Campbell and the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg and a state agency staff man.

Information officer for the Air Pollution Board is Hamilton Crockford, writer, and former reporter and department head for the Richmond Times-Dispatch who is well known locally.

The Cent. Va. Air Pollution Control Committee is an advisory body operating on a two-way street. It has access to the ears of both the State Air Pollution Control Board and the area's own localities, both individually and as a group. It serves the same geographic area as the Central Virginia Planning District Commission, the area known as Planning District II in the state setup of 22 planning districts.

There are four district air pollution control committees in Virginia. The Central Virginia group was the second one formed, but for consistency year in and out it has been the most active for the longest period of time, according to the state control board staff.

Some people see the committee as also a shining example of city-county cooperation. The localities subscribe $200 per year each for it to function.

Essentially the committee's role is to keep state and local authorities informed of area air pollution problems and seek their correction, Henson explains. Sometimes it is able to get localized problems taken care of by local officials so that the state board doesn't even have to get into the act -- a service which is a boon to an undermanned state agency, he noted.

The committee has bought four high-volume samplers for measuring suspended particulate matter in the air and has them in use at sites at Brookneal, Amherst, Bedford and Lynchburg. It has now bought a gas "bubbler" also for automatically measuring various gaseous pollutants.

The committee plans also to

At the August meeting, the Appomattox County Farm Bureau Board of Directors voted on and passed the following proposals for consideration at the State Farm Bureau Convention in November. The policy statements passed were as follows:

1. That the United States of America not carry on trade with Red China.

3. We recommend that the State Dept. of Highways be made to clear and keep clean of trash all drainage easements crossing or entering private properties.

4. We insist that the State Dept. of Highways eradicate Johnson grass and other noxious weed from its right of way on all roads, both Primary and Secondary.

More policies of local and state interest will be discussed at the next Board Meeting and also at our annual meeting.

The Annual Meeting of the Appomattox County Farm Bureau will be held at the Appomattox County High School at 7 p.m. on Oct. 9th, 1971. All members are urged to attend their annual meeting.

Many problems are facing both farmers and other citizens of rural areas today and only through united efforts can we speak out, be heard and serve our mutual interests.

The local Farm Bureau now consists of 77 member families and we have set out quota for 1972 at 100 member families. The State Farm Bureau now consists of 24,961 members as of Aug. 17th, 1971.

We want to remind all farmers of the area that the low requires the use of slow moving vehicle emblems is now in effect and I urge all persons using slow moving vehicles to comply.
